LONGER R. F. D. ROUTES

Efficiency experts of the post-office department are making a survey in the interests of efficiency and economy which indicates at this stage of the study that rerouting of rural mail delivery routes would permit reduction of rural mail carriers by 8000.

When most of the routes were mapped out the horse and buggy provided the motive power for rural mail deliveries. Routes averaged 28 miles in length. Today rural America receives its mail by automobile, relatively few horses remaining in the R. F. D. service.

Transition from horse power to motor power would permit doubling the length of the average route without delaying deliveries or making them irregular.

These disclosures in the name of economy are no guarantee that the changes they suggest will be put into effect. No opposition from the farmers is likely to develop, but rural congressmen will not readily submit to a scheme that would deprive them of 8000 government jobs and make 8000 of their constituents jobless.

While congressmen realize that efficiency and economy are as essential in public as in private business, their protests against the suggested reduction in carriers will not be quieted by anything so indefinite as Assistant General Coleman's assurance that "the department will do its utmost to prevent dropping employees."

THE PROMENADE

A contemporary writer bewails the passing of the old custom of "promenading" on pleasant evenings, and wishes that it might be restored. There is a reason in his plea.

Not so long ago, twilight in almost every community found groups of people—nice people—strolling quietly along the streets, stopping to chat with other groups and combining social intercourse, mild after-dinner exercise and enjoyment of the best part of the day in a fashion as inexpensive as it was charming and conducive to health and neighborliness. As the champion of the promenade points out, it is a pity that the fashion of tearing about in motor cars with little result but the exhaustion of purse and nervous energy has so completely superseded this calmer method of enjoyment. "Use your legs," he urges. "It is cheaper than riding and more restful of mind and body."

Those who have the courage to adopt his suggestion and leave the car standing in the garage for a few nights while they promenade, unhooked and unhooking, in the peaceful twilight, will find that he is right.

Some fast friends are too fast.

Men who sleep on the job never get up.

Careful Mothers Keen About It

"Coughs never last long in our family, for we use Foley's Honey and Tar," says Mrs. J. M. Hill, Homer, Ga.

"Foley's Honey and Tar has never failed to take care of coughs and colds in our family, and we have used it over 20 years," says Mrs. Ornstien, Green Bay, Wis. Dependable always, no opiates, no chloroform, nothing that a careful mother hesitates to give her children. That's why Mothers endorse Foley's Honey and Tar. Ask for it. "GENERAL CRACK"

BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore, is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Princess Eleanora, first engaged to King Leopold, Elector of Bavaria, has become the wife of General Crack, soldier of fortune. She is the price Leopold has paid, for reasons of state, so that General Crack will fight on his side. The Duchess of Schonbuechel persuades General Crack to give Eleanora time to like him. He leaves for the campaign, entrusting Eleanora to the Duchess. Gabor, implacable enemy of Crack, forges a letter by Eleanora to Leopold, protesting love, and presents it as genuine.

"Your Majesty's mind can tell you what I mean. Reflect on my words, sire, and you will see the very heart of my meaning. Prince Christian keeps the maiden for the end of the campaign. The maiden, sire, waits for—" and he paused, smiling at Leopold: the word "you" had been formed upon his lips. "She is as she was when she left her father's house. Her dreams of love, sire, are undisturbed. "That was a subtle move on Prince Christian's part—his way of love, sire. And there she stays in Ottenheim, her Paradise serene. Love waits for the lucky man, sire."

"Is this possible?" breathed Leopold. "And how do you know?"

"It is very possible, sire, to the fantastic-minded, Prince Christian care enough to wait, seeing perhaps that she was occupied with thoughts of another man."

She dreamed of seeing Leopold again!

"But he," cried Leopold, "could not have known this, even if it were true."

Again Gabor shrugged, spreading out his hands. "It is not for me to say. I come not into this at all, save as a passing confidant of the distracted maiden. She has confided in me, sire. He glanced towards the envelope. "She has trusted in you. I have no further part, save in so far as you should care to command me."

"I command nothing but your secrecy," said Leopold, scarcely knowing what he said. "I know not at the moment what to say or do—leave me; I have no longer any time."

"Nor any answer for the Princess Eleanora, sire?" smiled Gabor. "The lady is in deep distress and confusion."

"But these matters that you speak of—that she is still . . . Leopold paused and altered his sentence, which, in his agitation, he scarce knew how to phrase. . . . that she is only by her name his wife? How is this known to you?"

"It is known, sire, to every one—in Ottenheim."

"Go now," he said, "and before we leave Berlin I will send my answer; if not by you, by another."

"Best by me, sire," remarked Gabor, calmly, "since this is scarce a business into which to bring too many meddlers. Tongues move quickly, sire, in such an affair. It were well," he added, boldly, "not to offend Prince Christian before the issue of the campaign is decided."

"Why should I in any way offend Prince Christian?" said Leopold, nervously and wildly.

"Sire, if I may dare to say, I think perhaps if you wrote to the Princess Eleanora or she wrote to you it would most deeply, and even mortally, offend Prince Christian."

Leopold had not thought of this, and the words brought him up sharply as the sudden sight of an abyss might bring a man up who had been stumbling through fog. All his hopes, all his destiny, lay in the hands of Christian—the husband of Eleanora.

"Give me the letter," he muttered, hoarsely, "and presently I will let you know my resolve."

"How then shall I find Your Majesty? It is not so easy for me, once we have left the city, to come into your Imperial presence. Henderson can see no reason why I should be closeted with you, sire; and as for Prince Christian, I am in his deep displeasure."

THE NEW BRIDGE WILL PUT WEST BRISTOL ON A MAIN HIGHWAY

We have always had faith in West Bristol, and that faith is about to be justified. In connection with the new Bristol-Burlington bridge, the construction of which will be begun within a few weeks, there is a project for a highway to connect the bridge with the Lincoln Highway at South Langhorne.

Rogers Road is the logical route for this proposed highway to take. The property of those who already have bought homes and lots in West Bristol will increase in value. West Bristol will be on a main highway between the Lincoln Highway and the New Jersey Shore. West Bristol is going to be a highly desirable place in which to live.

There Are Still Some Fine Building Lots Available In Our Development In West Bristol

The prices on these lots are very reasonable—the terms put them easily within the reach of every industrious man and woman. Drop me a line about these lots, or come in and talk with us about them.

window and could not see perfectly clearly because of a lamp on the table.

Benjamin Jarrett, defense attorney, took the witness for cross examination. Jarrett made much of the smoke Mrs. Williams said she had seen.

"What color was the smoke—blue, black or gray?" demanded Jarrett.

"Bluish gray, I should think," Mrs. Williams replied.

"But you're not sure of that?"

"Oh, no—not positively sure."

Jarrett elaborated upon the smoke angle. He scored the first telling blow for the defense when Mrs. Williams contracted her direct testimony and admitted she had not seen the gun in the woman's hand.

Margiotti, however, exploded a verbal bombshell in the defense ranks when he put Howard Ziegler, 15, on the stand.

Howard, a grade school boy, testified he lived in a dwelling adjoining the Baldwin home. Margiotti led him through involved questioning until Howard told of seeing Dague—he identified Irene's alleged lover—at the rear of the car.

"He pointed a gun and shot at Corporal Paul!" the boy declared nervously. "He fired one shot and then he ran toward the front of the car!"

Young Ziegler's testimony was the first definite link introduced tending to connect Dague with the killing of Paul. All testimony up to this time had been to the effect that Irene had fired the shots.

Mrs. Joseph Cayot, of New York, who has been spending some time with her sister, Mrs. John Colgan, has returned to New York.

Extensive Alterations Being Made to Garage

Extensive additions and alterations are being made to the facilities of Wright Service Garage, Bath and Otter streets.

On a portion of the ground adjoining Mohican Hall, which was recently purchased by Mr. Wright, a large new building, one-story in height, is being erected. This will be used for the display of both new and used automobiles.

The display room of the garage at Bath and Otter streets is being torn out, and a "Driver and Service" department is to be installed. Those desiring service will drive beneath the second floor of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pfeiffer and son, Karl, of West Circle, were visitors on Sunday of friends in Torrisedale.

SON IS BORN

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Grimes, of Bath street, are the parents of a baby boy born at the Harriman Hospital yesterday morning.

ASKS CO-OPERATION

Mrs. Henry E. Ancker, president of the Bristol Needlework Guild, requests that all members make some article and sell same for the benefit of the Guild or earn money in some other manner for the work of the organization. The money thus derived will be used to purchase material for the sewing department, and it is the wish of the president that the proceeds be turned in by April 1st to Miss Ida Bruden.

TO SPEAK AT ANDALUSIA

Mrs. Bertha Muchert Miller, a former teacher in the Andalusia Public School, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association which is to be held in the school on Monday evening. There will be refreshments and an interesting program. The public is cordially invited to attend.

AUTOS TO CARD PARTY

Automobiles will meet folks at Bath and Otter streets, Bristol, tonight, to transport them to the card party in the William Penn Fire Station, Hulmeville. Cars will leave Bristol at eight o'clock.

"KONJOLA DID WONDERS IN MY STUBBORN CASE"

Spent Thousands for Relief
Then New Medicine Makes
Short Work of Dread
Rheumatism

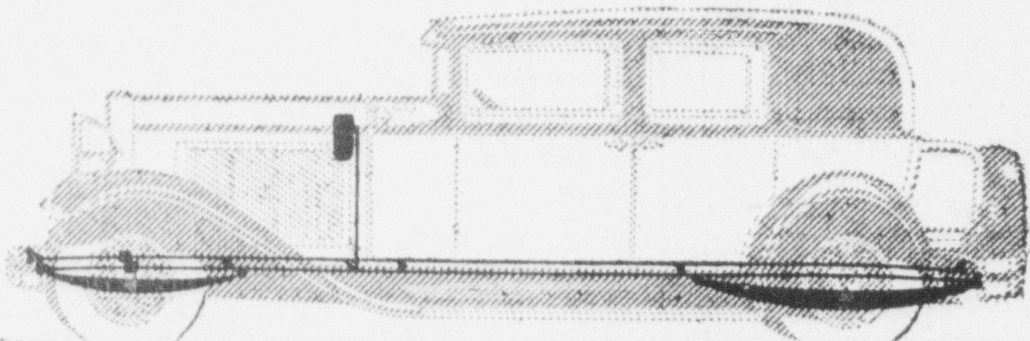

MR. W. M. BURROWS

"For thirty-five years I suffered from a severe case of rheumatism," said Mr. William Burrows, 2215 Myrtle street, Erie, Pa. "I spent thousands of dollars in a vain search for relief. There is no use trying to describe the knife-like pains that often shot through my body. Sufferers from rheumatism know what agony this dread ailment can bring. My general health and nervous system were badly affected and I was utterly discouraged."

"One day a friend advised me to try Konjola. I laughed at him but he insisted. Before two weeks had passed I knew, to my everlasting joy, that I had found the right medicine. My pains grew less and less until now, at the end of the fifth bottle of Konjola, I am almost free of this dread ailment for the first time in years. I shall continue the medicine, for my entire system has been benefited by its use. I can never express my gratitude for Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

THE OIL CUSHIONED CHASSIS

CHASSIS PROTECTION, CHASSIS PERFORMANCE that Nash alone Provides

NASH engineering has built an amazing amount of extra value and extra satisfaction into the 1930 Nash "400's." You will not find the oil cushioned chassis in any other car at the Nash price. Eventually, perhaps, but not now. And Nash offers you this superior chassis protection in both the Twin-Ignition Eight and Six. All Nash models, even the lowest priced, are equipped with an efficient, modern system of centralized chassis lubrication which eliminates the bother and uncertainty of hand greasing.

In addition the Twin-Ignition Eight and Six have permanently lubricated springs, encased in steel spring covers. This means chassis bearings, including spring shackles and springs, constantly bathed in oil. No squeaks, creaks or rust—longer life! And you will find the "400" price no higher than that of other cars without this valuable safeguard.

Minister Earnestly Praises the Virtues of Flaxolyn

Rev. H. M. Stewart, Who Has Preached Before the Congregations of Presbyterian, Methodist-Episcopal, Baptist and United Brethren Churches Throughout New England, New York and New Jersey.

Thousands of Church-Goers Who Have Listened to the Inspired Sermons of Rev. Stewart Are Astounded to Discover the Tremendous Physical Handicap Under Which He Labored, and Which He Overcame Only by the Timely Use of Dr. Luntz's New Herbal Flaxolyn.

He exhorts all fellow sufferers to use Flaxolyn immediately to check rapid burning-up of energy and help renew worn-down body tissues.

"Now I KNOW," says the Rev. H. M. Stewart, "that dizzy spells, insomnia, backaches, bloating, biliousness and nervousness are often symptoms of that dreadful condition called constipation."

"I praise Heaven for the relief that Dr. Luntz's remarkable discovery, the pleasant new Flaxolyn, has brought my worn-out body. I cannot be too lavish in my praise of the boon which Dr. Luntz has wrought for all humanity. I feel that only a miracle could save me from the decline into which I was rapidly sinking. For years I had suffered from headaches, heartburn and spells of dizziness, which I foolishly ascribed to over-work. Gradually these attacks grew worse, and I found it increasingly hard to work properly, especially after meals."

"I discovered that I could not concentrate on my texts. Spells of splitting headaches and biliousness sometimes gripped me to such an extent that it was necessary for me to lie on my back for hours at a time."

Head Reeled as He Stood Before Congregation

"Things went from bad to worse," states Dr. Stewart, as he continues with his startling story. "This toxic condition gained a terrific grip on my body. Finally it got so that on many occasions I stood up before my congregations, my head reeling, my knees unsteady and my hands trembling. Yet I was not nervous by nature. It was the result of these continually recurring attacks of dizziness, biliousness and headaches that were beginning to tell on my weakened body."

Tried Dozens of Medicines--- Took Flaxolyn Almost as Last Hope

"All during this time, I had been trying every kind of medicine and drug which claimed to relieve constipation and to help correct the torpid state of my liver. I was almost forced to admit defeat, when one of my parish told me how Dr. Luntz's Herbal Flaxolyn had cured him of constipation, stomach distresses and liver sluggishness."

Flaxolyn Brings Astounding Results

"The results from Flaxolyn were hardly short of being wonderful. After the first pleasant teaspoonful, I began to note the improvement. Within a short time my checks began to take on a new ruddy color of health. My congregation was quick to sense the difference and many friends flocked to congratulate me on my improvement."

"I told them my sudden recovery was due to the remarkable results of Flaxolyn, which relieves the body from harrowing effects of constipation, that manifests itself in headaches, insomnia, gas attacks, dull appetite, dizzy spells, dull eyes . . . and from the effects of sluggish liver, which causes a yellowish, jaundiced appearance, as well as a general listlessness and tiredness."

Says Thousands Here Need Flaxolyn

"I know that there are thousands of men and women who require the use of the harmless Herbal Flaxolyn Formula to restore their bodies to normal functioning. Since my illness I have recommended it to hundreds of people, and I take this unusual opportunity of assuring my fellow men and women that I know of nothing that will help revitalize a rundown condition as quickly and as well as Flaxolyn."

CLIP THIS VALUABLE COUPON

There is hardly a reader of this paper whose health will not respond for the better, through the use of Dr. Luntz's Herbal Flaxolyn. In fact, Flaxolyn is GUARANTEED to help you by the sixth pleasant spoonful, or you may return the partly-used bottle to your druggist and get your money back.
